

RIJKS MUSEUM

RESEARCH IN THE RIJKSMUSEUM

We celebrate the launch of the refreshed design of our blog The Art of Information. Read more about some of the most remarkable acquisitions of the Rijksmuseum Research Library from the past year and explore the art of papercutting.

NEW LIBRARY ACQUISITIONS

This past January, we once again presented a selection of the most remarkable additions to the Rijksmuseum Research Library collection. Curious to discover which books were showcased this year? Curator Alex Alsemgeest highlights several of them on The Art of Information (in Dutch). At the end of the article, you'll find a link to the complete list of newly acquired special collection items in our library catalogue.

Read more

NEW BLOG LOOK

Today we launch the new design of our departmental blog The Art of Information. Take a look and discover stories from Research Services!

Read more

THE ART OF PAPER CUTTING

On The Art of Information, Olivia Dawe writes about her recent research into papercutting in the Rijksmuseum collection.

Read more

A LIBRARY REQUIRES LOVE AND CARE

Have you seen the new bag designed by Irma Boom Office featuring our Research Library guidelines? Library visitors receive a free bag at the Friends' cloakroom.

RIJKSMUSEUM
Studiezaal@rijksmuseum.nl

MAIN PARTNERS

Nederlandsche Kultuurvermaatschappij

